INSPIRED BY THE MUSE

In any college there are always to be found some members of the student body who at least imagine that they have been inspired to write their dreams and inspirations in poetic measure. Sometimes rage, sometimes melancholy rules the student spirit, but generally it is the silvery moonlight and love's enchanting spirit.

The University of Georgia in its long life has had quite a number of students who contributed many kinds of verse to the current University publications during their college days. Some of them have essayed to write poetry in their maturer years, poetry of some merit. But unless my memory and research are at fault, only one reached the heights of poetic greatness——Henry Timrod, of the class of 1847. He, indeed, was a poet of pronounced genius and with his works all students of American literature are familiar. Elsewhere in these pages is a short biography of that distinguished alumnus, including a reprint of a poem he wrote while student in the University.

Samuel J. Cassels, of the Class of 1828, who in after life became an eminent Presbyterian preacher, even in his college days wrote poetry and later on published two volumes of his poems, some of which were excellent.

No doubt but that many poetic effusions of the University boys served but the pleasures of the passing hour on account of there being no college journal on whose pages the flashes of poetic genius might shed their light. Hence very few student poems prior to the twentieth century have been preserved. Then, in 1886, the Pandora, the college annual made its appearance and for the past sixty years has furnished a medium through which the messages from the muse have been transmitted. The first ten years of the twentieth century seem to have witnessed the most prolific output of student poetry. In recent years there has been no great evidence of poetic activity, though occasionally the boys, and sometimes the girls, give vent to their inspired thoughts.

I am reprinting just a few of these poems, some written during college days and others in maturer years, long after graduation.

David C. Barrow, Class of 1874, for fifty years a member of the University faculty, during nineteen of which he served as Chancellor, had a more or less poetic mind. I find no preserved manuscript of a poem written by him while he was a student, but in later years he wrote a number of short poems, some of which were excellent in form and thought. He wrote the centennial poem when the University was celebrating the one hundredth year of its existence in 1901. He was very fond of little children and here is a short poem he wrote on a little girl's birthday.

To Miss Margaret Haines Dasher

I'm a head above the highest,
Although I'm far from long,
I'm sure I'm very mighty,
Although I'm far from strong,
The way folks mind my wishes,
Although I speak no word,
Makes me smile upon them kindly,
Although it seems absurd.

I know that I'm a fairy,
For with my wand I move
The people all around me,
And my wand—why it is love.

Here is one written by Lucien P. Goodrich, Class of 1902, who went out from college to become a great lawyer and model citizen.

To The University of Georgia

Fair Georgia—and we love that name to call
In heated strife or sport or banquet hall—-
We pledge a nobler purpose than the youth of Sparta, when he left his home to fight
For Greece, as we to fight for Truth.
The bow thou gavest with its string of might,
Spun from the lock of thy bright hair,
The shield of thy indomitable will we bear,
And in what fields we fight, what foes we meet,
(It matters not so thy directing power
Guide and sustain us in each trying hour)
Each well-directed blow, each shout shall be
For Love, for Right, for Liberty, and Thee.

The passing years had laid heavy hands upon the old oak tree that stood in front of the University Chapel, under whose leafy boughs tradition says
Rob Toombs once made a famous speech after having been dismissed from the University in 1827. Nothing remained of the old tree except a portion of its trunk about twenty feet high. It was slowly decaying and in a few years would be gone.

Stiles Hopkins, a young student in the class of 1904, gazing at the old tree one day, was moved to write the following poem

To The Toombs Oak

Old tree, a son of yesterday art thou,
A stately monarch once wert thou—-but now
Tho thrice one hundred years thou'rt held thy place,
Thy day is near, thy death draws on apace.

Think not thy life is spared thee, aged oak,
For aught that thou hast been. The axeman's stroke
Long since thy knell had sounded, had not he
Whose name thou bearest, lengthened life for thee.

Thy fate is sad, thy death for aye will be,
While he will live alway in memory,
He cannot die, but thou soulless born,
When thou shalt come to die—-oblivion

Just who inspired A.L. Hardy, of the Class of 1905, to pen this poem that appeared in Vol. xvii of the Pandora in 1904, is not revealed, but the author must have been deeply in love with some sweet maiden to whom in print he gave the name

Ione

You're the daintiest little blossom that the summer ever missed,
You're the sweetest little flower that the sunshine ever kissed,
And your voice to me is music soft as bells that chime at eve,
When the sun of sleepy woodlands and uplifted hills takes leave.

Fair as angel dreams in heaven, bright as stars that shine at night,
Pure as snows that drift their beauty, with airy forms of white;
You're my own delightful goddess; you're my fairy full of glee;
You're my richest, rarest treasure— You are all the world to me.
To One That's Awa'!

Mr. Hardy had a marked poetic gift and contributed numbers of poems of merit to the college literature of his day, on such subjects as Toomba Oak, Guidance, Heroism, Night's Solitude, Judge Howell Cobb, Death, Ambition, Oconee Cemetery, My Love, etc.

Under the above heading he paid beautiful tribute to motherhood.

"When I recall all goodness and all truth
And tenderness and patience that hath blown
Full, like a rose, fair on my life's bright dawn,
To fall as incense on my buoyant youth,
I think of thee beyond the earth's deep ruth,
Far in the radiant realms of God and Peace
Where mortal sorrow hath its sweet surcease,
And their fair soul is glorified. In sooth,
A pure, ecstatic, holy joy doth thrill
Through my soul's chambers, and I feel that God
Doth smile to see their newborn spirit fill
With bliss undreamed when earth's sad ways were trod,
And I, thus thinking, am content to wait,
For thou'lt not chide me that I greet thee late."

Somnia

George H. Gillon, Class of 1907, put in a few lines his idea of the need of youth for worthy and uplifting dreams.

"What were the world without a youthful dream
The hope that cheers and lightens darkest days?
The dream of budding manhood ever must light
The world, and be a beacon torch for him
Who toils from day to day, or else mankind
Would cease to grow and to stagnation sink.
Youth needs a dream, illumined by a star,
High shining from the future's void to lead
His path to sweet success and heavenly peace.
More than one hundred and twenty years had passed over the old building when Charles N. Feidelson, of the Class of 1906, took up his pen, at the bidding of the Muse, to voice his spiritual devotion to what in his college days had been his home. This little poem appeared in the Pandora of 1926, and expresses the feelings of thousands of Georgia students who, in the years that are gone, spent their hours of study, sleep and sometimes rollicking experiences beneath its venerable roof.

To Old College

Thou’rt crumbling neath the heavy weight,
Old college of a hundred years; storm-beaten, gray and desolate,
Thou tremblest as the dread end nears.

The ivy scarcely serves to hide
The rents which Time hath wrought in thee,
And in thy aspect doth abide
A look of sad anxiety.

How many stories could’st thou tell
Of the sweet past and lovelier days,
Of youth, caught by ambition’s spell,
Of Hope, felt in a thousand ways.

In thy dull rooms, the future great
Have knowledge sought and learning found,
And voices that have swayed the state
Have tried on thee their boyish sound.

The wind thy requiem oft tolls;
Thy corridors and halls are still;
But thou art fairer to those true souls
Who love thee now, and always will.
Break, Break, Break!

Years ago some student vented his aroused feelings in poetry in protest against boaring house fare. It is quite common even to this day that boarding house menus are flayed for their deficiencies. But this student failed to sign his name and thus missed the guerdon of immortality.

This un-speakable biscuit crust,
And I would that my teeth could crumble
This bread into finest dust!"

"O, well for the hungry man
That his massive jaws are strong!
O, well for the feeble boy
That he bringeth a hammer along!

"And the tiresome meal goes on,
And the starving ones get their fill;
But, oh, for the taste of a nice hot roll,
And a steak that is tender still!

"Break, break, break.
With your jaws, as best you may,
For the tender beef you have prayed for so
Will not come for many a day."

Years later W.E. McDougald, Class of 1906, took to writing poetry. He contributed a number of sparkling and attractive poems to the college journalism of his day. He also took a notion to parody Tennyson’s immortal poem, using the indicative instead of the imperative and telling of actual conditions in the present, the ver-sa-emptv purse of the student.

Broke, broke, broke!

"Broke, broke, broke,!
Are 'every day' terms you see,
But you’d better be glad that the pan won’t write
The thoughts that arise in me.

"Oh, well for the millionaire’s boy
As he rides in his auto car,
And feasts all day on the fat of the land
Mid the smoke of a fat cigar.

"But the poverty-struck go on
To their haven under the hill
And sigh from morn ’til eventide
For the sound of the 'chink' that is still."
The Chapel Bell

A student in the class of 1856, who was too modest to sign his name, contributed a poem to the University of Georgia Magazine published that year on "The Chapel Bell." In those days the University was generally referred to as Franklin College. The sentiments expressed apply fully as well to the student of today as to those students who read the poem almost a century ago. On the ears of the thousands of Georgia alumni scattered all over the world fall the echoes of the Chapel bell as they float down from the hills of boyhood.

"How sweet is the sound as it breaks on my ear,
O'er lake and streamlet, so wild and so clear,
Far echoing through woodland, through valley and dell,
The deep mellow tones of the 'Old Chapel Bell.'"

When Sol from his couch in the East doth arise,
Beam brightly on earth and mounts high in the skies,
Loud peals of rich music his welcoming tell,
All nature awakes with the 'Old Chapel Bell.'

When night her thick mantle around us hath cast—
When stars glitter brightly—when daylight is past—
From the worm-eaten belfry sweet melodies swell,
Our slumber is soothed by the 'Old Chapel Bell.'

When we leave the 'Old Franklin' we often will think
Of the pure fount of knowledge from which now we drink,
And, oh, what a throng of deep feelings will well
From our hearts when we think of the 'Old Chapel Bell.'"

The Carrier Bird.

Here is a little gem from the pen of Chancellor Barrow:

"The carrier that homeward speeds,
Through fair, through stormy skies,
When win or rain his way impedes
Above the sway must rise.

"Hindered and beaten back are we
By earth-born doubt and fear,
Above them Lord, up close to Thee
Our struggling spirit's bear."
Alma Mater

The words of Alma Mater, the official song of the University of Georgia, were written by James B. Wright, Jr., a member of the Class of 1913. For years it has been printed on all the principal programs of the University, is sung every Commencement and on numerous important occasions, and at the proper time at all football games, the teams, the alumni, the visitors all stand at attention and sing this song. A few years since a suggestion was made that a new Alma Mater song be written and set to different music. The movement got nowhere and there is little chance that any change will ever be made in it.

"From the hills of Georgia's northland
Beams thy noble brow,
And the son of Georgia rising
Pledge with sacred vow.

Chorus

"Alma, Mater, thee we'll honor,
True and loyal be,
Ever crowned with praise and glory,
Georgia, Hail to thee.

"Neath the pine tree's stately shadow
Spread thy riches rare,
And thy songs, dear Alma Mater
Will thy treasures share

"Through the ages, Alma Mater,
Men will look to thee;
Thou the fairest of the Southland,
Georgia's Varsity."

My Other Coat Pocket at Home.

Edwin B. Vail, of the Class of 1900, was enamored of poetry. He wrote many poems while in the University and quite a number of them were published in the University and other publications. The poem under the above heading was a gentle hint to the forgetful man.

"I took a young lady to the opera last night—
She was winsome and fair as could be;
As we entered the doorway I shook with delight
As my fair one smiled sweetly at me.
In a dream I passed on, when I heard a voice say,
'Your tickets!' (I heard with a groan);
But my tickets weren't there—
They were left with my cash
in my other coat pocket at home.

"Once I wanted a loan and I met with a friend,
And asked him my lack to supply;
He reached in his pocket, I joyfully watched
And marked every move with my eye;
But my hopes were dispelled when I heard my friend speak,
'Old Feller,' (I heard with a groan),
In can't lend you that five,
For it I have left
in my other coat pocket at home.'

I dreamt that I went up to heaven's bright gate,
Way up in the blue sky's arched dome,
Of St. Peter, up there, I asked to get it,
To dwell in my bright heavenly home;
But alas for my hopes, for St. Peter asked me,
'Where's your passport?' I said with a groan,
Alas, I can't enter—it's left with my hopes
in my other coat pocket at home."
Opportunity

Many have been the poets who have written of Opportunity. Here is the way George M. Battey, Class of 1908, expressed himself poetically on that subject:

"I heard a footstep in the night,
It paused a while, then hurried on,
And well I know when it had gone
'Twas not for me.

"I felt a spark come near my home—
A spark of love and friendship fast;
It flickered feebly—then it passed—
I know not where.

"I heard a voice like Siren song;
Come floating lightly through the air;
Distrustful did I cowl and sneer
Until it hushed.

"And thus have phantoms come and gone—
Unheeding have I mocked and hissed—
And who may know—mayhap I 've missed
My destiny."

Introspective

"Last night I dreamed, I saw the misty veil was rent,
With knowing eye beheld the pall of death unfold,
And Truth, a thousand, thousand years in darkness pent,
The scheme of after life from death's transition told.

"Our something after death is justice in full meed,
Each overt act, each hidden thought is weighed,
The just find joy complete on naked Truth to feed;
Alas, one touch and sinful souls the cost have paid.

"And thus my scheme of life these clarion notes recall,
And deeds of men on earth for just reaction need
Not harps of gold nor hells of fire; bare Truth does all.
A dream, you trow; and yet I call it worthy creed."

Sidney O. Smith—Class of 1907
I see a Boarding House Lady.

George H. Richter must not have liked either his meals at the boarding house or his landlady when he wrote the following poem:

"You stand most fatly in your door
Leaning on a post
With folded, bloated arms.
You must be all flabby in your head,
For you seem to dream
Of soggy, heavy meat,
You are oppressed with grease and stench,
A whiff of cabbage, boiled,
Like oil and dirty clothes
Blown out into the street,
And that is you."

Denial

Written by Thomas St. John, who, while in college, wrote many poems of merit.

"I do not always promise to be true
Or swear ingenuantly that we won't part;
I say that you are just precisely—-you,
And that your tenderness disturbs my heart.

I do not offer you increasing faith
Or timeless vows, or anything save this;
I shall sometime go stalwart down to death,
With the remembered guerdon of your kiss."

It is well that I am lame

Wylly Folk (St. John), among the younger graduates of the University, has achieved quite a reputation as a journalist and short story writer.

"Perhaps it is as well that I am lame;
For, if my thin, pale body could be whole,
I know that I should be a dancing girl.
A half-nude, gleaming, kiss-adoring dancing girl,
Crimson-sinning, passion-loved and---lost.
My soul cries out for nights of love and wine,
Of love and dancing. I am motion-mad,
I would be whirling in a veil of lace,
I would have silver-scarlet dancing slippers,
And I would love through nights of cool, pale moons.
Perhaps———-it is as well that I am lame."
Anticipation.

John D. Allen was a student with a flair for poetry and also a writer of excellent prose. For a while he did good service as editor of the University of Georgia Alumni Record and had experience after graduation as a professor of English.

"There will be sunshine in a garden, and A breath of air, lazy with warmth of June, To blow pink blossoms down about a bed Of violets. There will be a brook to sing Softly of summer days, and on its current There will float argosies of purple flowers Down to a distant sea. And by an open gate, Vine-mantled and gray-stained, will stand a tree Spreading green arches over garden wall. And there will be quietness all about Save for the singing of the brook And for the music of a nesting bird. And in that hour you will come to me, And in that hour I shall kiss your lips."

A Fool's Errand

About seven decades ago a number of students made up a plot to steal the carriage of Professor Williams Rutherford (Old Foot), carry it down to the Oconee River and give it a decent burial in the muddy waters of that stream. They carried out their plans to an unhappy and surprising denouement and later on told the story in verse, author unknown. The following are the concluding lines of the poem:

"When they reached the gentle water they all paused upon the shore; By its wheels they held the phaeton and a smile their features wore As they slowly pushed the clumsy rolling carriage from the bank, And its huge and rusty axles 'neath the hungry waters sank."

"Stop! The carriage door is creaking! It is now thrown open wide!"

Heavens! On the cushions sitting is a gray-haired man inside. See, with measured grace he rises, through the door his head is put, Sages of Calculus defend us! Satan take us, -'tis Old Foot!"

With a differential accent and a parabolic smile, And a logarithmic gesture, in a manner full of guile, The professor thanked the students for the pleasant evening ride Through the shadowed streets of Athens to the charming riverside.

'Now young gentlemen!' he whispered, 'if you all are satisfied, We will journey back to Ophrah, where you left my horses tied. By the by, that team of horses on tomorrow I shall sell Since I find a team of donkeys serves my purpose just as well.'"
Centennial Hymn

In June 1901, the University of Georgia celebrated its centennial. It fell to the lot of David C. Barrow, of the Class of 1874, to write the centennial Hymn. He was at that time Professor of Mathematics in the University faculty and five years later was to be chosen as chancellor of the institution.

"A hundred years of toil and care
Our mother feely gave,
A hundred years of thought and prayer,
O mother, kind and brave!
And now from all her borders wide
Old Georgia's sons are come,
High swell their hearts with joy and pride,
And glad they gather home.

"Wide swings our mother's open gate,
Hard beats her heart with love,
No king who sits in regal state
Can such array improve.
Her stalwart sons are here in bands,
No honors do they spare,
She sees the labor of her hands,
She sees her answered prayer.

"Our rock-ribbed hills forevermore
Their silent strength express,
Our wide plains yield a bounteous store,
A people rich to bless:
And Georgians love our Georgia land
From Dade to Glynn's blue tide;
But, mother, though our land be grand,
Thy sons are Georgia's pride.

"O God, who gave the red hills might
And spread the fertile land,
Thy word has been our mother's light,
Her strength, Thy guiding hand.
In simple faith her sons were taught
To work and watch and pray,
To shun the paths with evil fraught,
And walk in Wisdom's way."
HAUNTED

Alfred Colquitt Newell, grandson of U.S. Senator Colquitt and throughout a long life a leading insurance man in Atlanta, while a college boy in the University of Georgia, Class of 1891, among other poetic effusions, wrote the following:

"I stood upon the banks of some clear, sunlit stream,
I heard the tuneful melody and saw the laughing gleam
Of lucent waters and their silver spray,
But far beneath the purling of its pebbly bed
Methought I saw her eyes, sweet eyes, dear eyes, that led
My soul from night to everlasting day.

"I watched the silent setting of the golden sun,
Beheld the glorious strip of colors melt in one:
A fiery sapphire lit the skies above;
But gleaming far beyond the sunset's radiant hue
I saw her eyes, sweet eyes, dear eyes so true
That taught my heart to know of life and love."

OD\E TO A DIPLOMA

Harry A Alexander, Class of 1893, neatly balanced in poetry a diploma and the dream of a sweetheart.

"O little Dip--of sheepskin wrought,
Whose folds bright ribbons gay entwine,
In Latin writ--I suffer doubt
If I shall ever call thee mine.

"I sought thee long, I sought thee well,
With perseverance firm and true,
Until there crossed my path in life
A winsome maid with eyes of blue.

"Alas, that Science lacked the charm
To draw my thoughts from that sweet face:
Alas that Knowledge lacked the power
To blind me to that beauteous grace.

"But so they did, and now my hope
Of winning thee doth fade away,
I fear it will have disappeared
By dawning of Commencement Day.

"How'er thy loss is not the stroke
That thrills the chord of deepest woe,
The annals of my Senior year
A sadder tale than that doth show.

"I could resign thee with a smile,
And let thee pass without a care,
If that those eyes of azure hue
Sought me and not that Freshman there.
Nearly two thousand years ago in the little town of Bethlehem, in a manger nearby, since there was no room at the inn, a little child was born. Upon the ears of the shepherds, as they tended their sheep upon the neighboring hills the sweet notes of the song of the angels fell as they announced the birth of the world's Redeemer.

The little child grew in years and stature and wisdom and came at last in the years of full manhood to live a life free from all sin and to give to mankind the rules of life upon the observance of which all worthwhile civilization must finally depend.

These rules have been tested in every known crucible across the centuries and have never been found wanting. They represent today the only hope of mankind. From Nazareth and Galilee they have extended their influence into every corner of the earth, the banner of the Cross has been unfurled in every land and clime and the drumbeat of the victorious legions of the Master rolls around the world.

It was quite natural, therefore, that as the eighteenth century drew towards its close, Abraham Baldwin, who himself had served as a minister of God, dreaming of the establishment of a university in which the youth of Georgia might secure proper instruction, should write as the preamble to the charter of the University of Georgia words that linked in indissoluble bonds RELIGION AND EDUCATION as the two foundation stones upon which the spiritual and intellectual superstructure should be erected.

As the story of that institution, traced by the humble pen of this writer, draws to its close, it is fitting to repeat here a few words from the preamble to that immortal document known to all the alumni of the institution as the Charter of the University of Georgia.

Said Baldwin in these opening sentences:

"As it is the distinguishing happiness of free governments that civil order should be the result of choice and not necessity, and the common wishes of the people become the law of the land, their public prosperity and even existence very much depends upon suitably forming the minds and morals of their citizens. When the minds of the people in general are viciously disposed and unprincipled and their conduct disorderly, a free government will be attended with greater confusion and evils more herri, than the wild, uncultivated state of nature; it can only be happy where the public principles and opinions are properly directed and their manners regulated. This is an influence beyond the stretch of laws and punishments and can be claimed only by religion and education. It should therefore be among the first objects of those who wish well to the national prosperity, to encourage and support the principles of religion and morality, and early to place the youth under the forming hand of society, that by instruction they may be moulded to the love of virtue and good order.

RELIGION AND EDUCATION—they have, across the years from 1801 this way, maintained the closest association in the ever-developing work of the University of Georgia. The chief executives of the University have always been either ministers of God or lay members of distinction in the evangelical churches of Christianity, and in the management of the institution they have kept the faith. The members of the faculty, with very few exceptions, have been members of the church. While there has been no requirement of church membership on the part of faculty members, the records show that there have been few professors who were not attached to some branch of the church. Without regard to denominational connection, there have been in the faculty Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, Episcopalian, Catholics, members of other Christian church organizations, and in some instances Jews.

During the first century of the University's existence, all the presidents and chancellors, with the single exception of Josiah Meigs, were ministers of God, and Meigs himself was a member of the church and fully approved the influence of religion in the lives of young men.

John Brown, Robert Findley, Moses Waddel, Alonzo Church, Andrew A. Lipscomb, Henry H. Tucker, Patrick H. Mell, and William E. Beggs, a roster of eminent religious leaders who left the impress of great and devoted lives upon the youth of Georgia. The leading religious denominations were well-represented; five Presbyterians, two Baptists and one Methodist. The Presbyterians had the edge, but later the Baptists took the lead.

During the twentieth century only laymen have occupied the chair of the chief executive of the University, Walter B. Hill, David C. Barrow, Charles M. Snelling, Steadman V. Sanford and Harmen White Caldwell, all men of prominence in their respective churches, two Methodists and three Baptists.

Reference has been made hitherto in these pages to the religious affiliations and effective service of these educational leaders in spite of criticism, launched at times by denominational enthusiasts in efforts to convince the people of Georgia that the training of their sons should be directed through institutions, the atmosphere in which the students at the University lived was always of a moral, religious and uplifting nature. Moses Waddel definitely put the stamp of religion on the institution and there it has remained to this day. In the church, in the lay activities of life, not only the chief executives but also, in the main, the members of the faculty have by precept and example laid emphasis on what I have been pleased to name as the subject on which this chapter is based: "The Supreme Guidance Across the Years."

In these closing pages I know of nothing more fitting to record than the views of the distinguished educator who has directed the affairs of the University since 1935.

Harmen White Caldwell, president of the University, is a member of the Baptist church. Modest and unpretentious, as far as possible shunning the limelight, but ever ready to answer with service when called upon, possessing many of the high qualities of the beloved Chancellor, "Uncle Dave" Barrow, exemplar of the best in clean, upright Christian living, a safe leader at all times in directing the steps of youth in this day of many perplexing problems, he has on a number of occasions made addresses on religious subjects. Illustrative of his firm belief and of the dominating convictions that go into his successful conduct of the affairs of the University, is the address he made on May 16, 1937 before the congregation of the First Baptist Church of Athens on the subject of "The Application of the Principles of Christianity to Life."

When one has read it through from start to finish the fact will be made apparent that, according to Baldwin's charter, written almost more than a century and a half ago, RELIGION AND EDUCATION are still bound together in indissoluble tie in the administration of the University of Georgia.

Here is the address in full:
"Throughout the ages there have always been those who believed that no good could come out of Christianity. Some there have been who opposed Christianity openly. Far more, however, have been willing to concede that the Teachings of Christianity were the expressions of a beautiful ideal but at the same time they have felt that such idealism has no place in the world of practical affairs. To them the Teachings of our religion have been the impracticable visions and dreams of a man who lived in this world but who was not a part of it. Indeed, the action and behavior of some members of the Christian church lead us to believe that they feel that their religion and their secular activities are two separate and distinct things and neither should be allowed to trespass upon the domain of the other.

"And so we see the spectacle of lives divided into compartments, and these compartments separated by a barrier through which the influence of religion cannot penetrate. We see men and women who profess to be Christians in the church and whose actions brand them as pagans in the home, in the shop, in the marketplace.

"This is the first condition which I would mention to youth in discussing the place of Christianity in the practical life of the world, and the place which Christianity should occupy in their own lives.

"Those who set aside their religion in a water-tight compartment so that it cannot interfere with other activities of their lives---these persons have failed utterly to comprehend the meaning of Christianity or else they have failed in any effort that they may have made to give it its proper place in their lives.

"True Christianity is not a dead tradition that has come down to True Christianity is a vitalizing principle which, if utilized, brings to us a more abundant life. Christianity is not a system of laws and regulations and restrictions; Christianity is a way of thinking and a way of living. Except in so far as religion expresses itself in our thoughts, in our acts, in our living, it is a formal, a fictitious and a useless thing. According to my way of thinking, the church is not a refuge for those who want to save their own petty, selfish souls, but a place where we can catch a vision of the potentialities of life and where we can receive the inspiration to go forth to convert these potentialities into realities, not only for ourselves but for our fellowmen. The principle of Christianity is a fructifying principle; it is creative and productive. Religion is not an end in itself; it is a means for achieving life more abundant.

Jesus Himself recognized the existence of those who do only lip service to their religions. At one time He said, 'Not everyone that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, but he that doeth the will of my Father.' And again, 'He that heareth my sayings and doeth them builds upon a rock.'

I mention this attitude towards Christianity because one's attitude towards a thing is a most important factor in influencing his decision as to what he is going to do about it.

But what of those who say that religion can't be applied under the conditions of modern life? They say this is a world of cut-throat competition; it's 'every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost.' Will the gentle doctrines of humility, of forgiveness, of purity of heart, of service, work in such a world as this? They might work, we are told, in some ideal social order but not under conditions like those that exist today. So what are we told to do? Some would change the social order. And yesterday at the Southern Baptist meeting in New Orleans a group of pastors presented to the convention a proposed resolution calling for a modification of the economic system by changing our modern industrial structure from a competitive to a co-operative state. I am glad the resolution was defeated.

"Ladies and Gentlemen, I submit to you that no system of man-made laws, no revolution, no re-arrangement of the machines of production or of the processes of distribution can destroy the individual's instincts of ambition and competition or even the vices of self-love and indifference to the needs and sufferings of others. The proposal of a Socialist State as a solution for the problems of the world aims to accomplish by economic change that which can be obtained by nothing short of spiritual regeneration. The doctrines of Jesus Christ can be made effective—not by mere social change—but by changes in the hearts of men. Jesus came to convert not things but men. The program of the Church depends for its efficiency on a spirit of brotherhood, unselfishness, love of service. No system will produce the results that Christians want, so long as that system is controlled by selfish and brutal people.

Christians

"The problem of Christianity today is to apply the teachings of Christ to their own lives under the conditions of the world as they exist. This was the problem of Christians five hundred, a thousand, and fifteen hundred years ago, and it will be the problem of Christians five hundred, a thousand, and fifteen hundred years hence. If Christianity deserves to be a religion at all, then it must be a universal religion, a religion whose principles can be applied under the varying conditions of all ages and all countries. If it is impractical today, then it has ever been so and will continue always to be so.

Those who have tried it earnestly have not found Christianity impractical. On the contrary, they have found in the practice of its teachings of love and service to others that richer and fuller life of which the Master spoke? When we place our business and our professions above the level of contention and self-seeking, when we regard them as affording us opportunities for the expression of the Christian ideal of service, we find that not only are others helped but that we ourselves are the indirect beneficiaries. Modern business is not essentially nor incurably evil. On the contrary, it may be made an agency for the advancement of Christ's kingdom. Those creative and productive forms of business—farming, manufacturing, development of new regions, new power, new discoveries—render a distinct social service. Already the force of Christian ideals is bringing about a humanization of business and industry such as the world has never seen before. Conciliation, arbitration, co-operation, profit-sharing, industrial partnership are the new ways of business wisdom, but the underlying principle of these new schemes is the principle which underlies the teachings of Jesus. It is encouraging to see that habits of trade which a generation ago were not only entrenched as customs but defended as creditable have become either frankly discarded or guiltily concealed.

"The efforts of the modern state to protect the poor and helpless, to improve living conditions, to preserve health, to guarantee living wages—these efforts I believe are consistent with the teachings of Christianity. Perhaps we are moving in the right direction after all these centuries.

"There once was a time when men were prone to measure success by material standards, when a man's worth was deemed to be in proportion to his accumulation of things. And it is so easy for an abundance of things to crowd out high ideals and to stifle noble impulses. Jesus understood this when He asked, \"What profiteth it a man if he gaineth the whole world and lose his own soul?\" But this does not mean that the accumulation of money is anti-Christian necessarily. It is the use of that money and the effect that we allow it to produce on ourselves that determines whether it is good or evil. Of our money, our possessions, our abilities and our talents, we are stewards. And according to the Teachings of Christianity we are morally responsible for the use we make of them. Whatever your talent is, young man, young woman, you must use it—not for selfish purposes but for the cause of the God Whom you serve and for the cause of humanity. The greater your ability and your talents, the greater the responsibility which rests upon you. The man entrusted with five talents earned five more—and he was rewarded. The man with two talents earned two more—and he received the same reward. The man with one talent was afraid and hid it in the earth. He kept what he had but he produced nothing more—and he was punished. Had he earned only one talent more, it is probable that he would have received the same reward as his more fortunate brothers. Not how much we accomplish but the extent to which we utilize our abilities.

"From the standpoint of Christian morality, our duty is to make the greatest possible use of those powers and talents—to carry the doctrines of the brotherhood of man, of love and service, into our daily lives. And experience shows, strange as it may seem, that he who forgets himself in the service of others in the end finds his own life richer and more complete. No truer saying was ever uttered than that, "He who saves his life shall lose it, but he who loses his life for my sake shall find it." The principles of Christianity will work in this modern world if we will only try them out.

"We have spoken briefly of Christianity in the affairs of daily life. That is one phase of Christianity, but there is another phase not less essential. All about him in the world, in the universe, the intelligent man sees order and order implies law. All about him, man sees created things. Creation implies a Creator, and intelligence and intention. The thinking man cannot escape the conclusion that there is a creative power and a law and a purpose behind this life. But what is that power, that law and that purpose? Here religion comes in. Religion, if it performs its whole function, must give an understanding and a meaning and a purpose to life. No life is complete, no life can reach its fullest development, without the influence of religion. The soul of man yearns instinctively for the spiritual. The material things of life and even the love and companionship of our friends and loved ones do not satisfy this longing. Here is a great function of religion—and for us of Christianity—to satisfy the spiritual needs of man. It is in quiet meditation, in communion with the Eternal, that we find the inspiration to guide us and the spiritual strength to carry us through the life of a busy and confused world. It is interesting to note how often Jesus withdrew from human companionship and went away alone to the hills or the sea in order that He might renew His strength in communion with God. In some respects our spiritual development falls short of that of some peoples of the East, because we fail to recognize the importance of attuning our souls to the Infinite and because in our mad haste we refuse to take time for thought, meditation and prayer. In these quiet moments are to be found the sources of power; in these quiet meditations come the visions, not only of promise for the future but of where lies the path of duty in the present. The stream of religious life rises in the high places of communion with God and the Eternal. It flows down from the mountain-tops into the commonplace affairs of life, into the activities of the commercial world, into our social and home life. On the mountain tops the horizon of our faith is enlarged, and no longer shut in by the pressure of work and care, we can see more clearly the whole scheme of things and man's relation to it. But the same impulse which led Christ to steal away apart from the world, that same impulse led Him back again to men, with more power to do His work among men. And so should it be with you in planning your life. Do not overlook the necessity for the spiritual as a source of inspiration and power, but let these spiritual experiences strengthen and fortify you for life, for coming back to the practical affairs of the world and dealing with them in a manner consistent with the teachings of Christianity. Success—success of the lasting and most satisfying sort will come to you in the degree to which you are able to live those fundamental principles of Christianity—Love and Service.
IN THE FIELD OF THE JUDICIARY

The record of University of Georgia alumni in the field of the judiciary is that of brilliant success and achievement.

Two of the alumni have served on the Supreme Court of the United States. Associate Justice John A. Campbell, of the Class of 1825, who held that position at the opening of the War Between the States and served as the intermediary between President Lincoln and the Confederate commissioners before Fort Sumter was fired on, and Joseph Rucker Lamar, Class of 1877, who in recent years was one of the ablest members of that great Judicial tribunal.

In the state of Georgia Emory Speer, Class of 1869, was for many years federal judge, and Samuel H. Sibley, Class of 1892, for a number of years has held the position of federal district judge and federal circuit judge. William H. Barrett, Class of 1895, served for a number of years as federal district judge and Robert L. Russell is now serving as federal district judge.

Charles H. Dupont, of the Class of 1826, became Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Florida, and William H. Jones, of the same class, became Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Texas. William H. Pepe, of the Class of 1869, served as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of New Mexico.
Chief Justices of the Supreme Court of Georgia.

During the earlier years of the state of Georgia there was no state Supreme Court. The judges of the Superior courts were the final arbiters in affairs judicial.

It is quite likely that the movement to establish the Supreme Court of Georgia originated with Joseph Henry Lumpkin. He was probably the ablest lawyer in the state. It is certain that he exerted more influence in its final establishment than any other citizen. He was a layer of such high character and outstanding ability that his judgment carried great weight when the legislature came to the point of setting up the supreme judicial tribunal.

The Supreme Court of Georgia was established in 1842 and the three judges named at that time were three able members of the Georgia bar, Joseph Heny Lumpkin, Eugenius A. Miblet and Hiram Warner. Lumpkin and Miblet were University of Georgia men. All three held their positions on the Supreme bench for a number of years and established great reputations for their honesty, ability, judgment and fairness to all whose cases came before them for adjudication.

The decisions rendered by them stand out prominently in the records of the highest judicial tribunals of the country, many of them being quoted to this day in more recent decisions.

Chief Justice Lumpkin, chosen as the head of the Court at its organization, was re-elected from time to time and filled that position until his death in 1867, a period of twenty-four years.

From other Georgia alumni there served as Chief Justice

James Jackson, Class of 1837
William H. Fick, Class of 1869
Richard B. Raebell, Class of 1879
W. Frank Jenkins, Class of 1895

The records of all five of the alumni as Chief Justice speak for themselves and constitute in large measure the great history of that court. The combined years of service totalled years of the one hundred and four years of the history of the Supreme Court of Georgia.

No less brilliant have been the records of other Georgia alumni who served as Associate Justices of the Supreme Court.

Superior Court Judges and Other Judges

Graduates of the University of Georgia who entered the legal profession in many instances were attracted to the judicial positions. It is impractical just here to arrange a list of all Georgia alumni who served as judges of the Superior courts, county courts, city courts, not only in Georgia but in other states. Suffice it to say that more than two hundred Georgia alumni have served with distinction in those positions. Just to name a few of them as representative of the large number:

IN THE FIELD OF GOVERNMENT

For more than a century the alumni of the University of Georgia have exercised a profound influence on national and state government. In the earlier days they took more interest in government than they do now as a rule. While the institution had no regular department of political science the students found time outside the class rooms to discuss politics and inform themselves on miscellaneous subjects of governmental interest and in their literary societies to perfect themselves in debate.

It is true that no alumnus has reached the presidency of the republic, but the chief reason why such has not occurred is the fact that the alumni came from the wrong section of the country. There have been several dozen leading statesmen who might have reached that high office but for sectional prejudices, and even today the fact that a man hails from the South is an effective bar to elevation to the highest office that can be bestowed by the nation.

But in the halls of the United States Senate and the national House of Representatives, the alumni of the University have rendered conspicuous service. In the first half century of the republic's existence, five Georgia alumni served in the Senate and thirty-one in the House of Representatives.

Added to the achievements of the alumni in the halls of the national capital, were the services rendered by University of Georgia alumni in the organization of the government of the Confederate States of America, a full account of these services appearing elsewhere in this story of the University.
In the United States Senate

To represent Georgia in the United States Senate has always been regarded as the goal towards which all aspiring statesmen would cast their eyes.

During the past century, the University of Georgia from among its alumni has provided ten senators, whose combined years of service reached a total of seventy-three years.

These ten Georgia alumni were:

All of these senators rendered conspicuous service and contributed much to the development of the American republic. Some of them served many years in the Senate, especially Bacon, Harris, and Russell. Senator of Russell is now completing his sixteenth year.

The supreme political ambition of Richard B. Russell, Sr., father of the present Senator Russell and for many years Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Georgia, was to occupy a seat in the United States Senate, but that ambition was never gratified. On the night after the election of his son to that position, the writer went to the home of Chief Justice Russell in Winder, Ga., to tender his congratulations on the successful race that had just been concluded by young Russell.

The aging chief-justice was seated in a rocking chair on his front porch, beaming all over with smiles. He shook my hand and expressed his deep appreciation, and said: "Now, Lord, let my servant depart in peace." He lived a number of years after that, and while he never reached the Senate himself, he was proud of the record made by his boy in that august assemblage.

Those ten senators, above mentioned, represented much ability and each had his dominating influence—the scholarly Dawson, the fiery but able and eloquent Toombs, the sagacious Johnson, the eloquent and impressive Hill, the knightly Gordon, the patient, conservative, efficient Bacon, the careful, popular and effective Harris, the forceful and brilliant Hardwick, the statesmanlike and successful Russell. The average achievements of these ten men compare favorably with those of any other ten United States Senators.
Governors of Georgia

During the first century of Georgia's colonial history and statehood, 1733–1833, forty-two men filled the office of governor. Necessarily the University of Georgia could hardly have been expected to have furnished any of these chief executives from the list of its alumni since only twenty-nine years had elapsed after the first graduating class in 1804.

The first University of Georgia alumnus to fill the office of governor, was Howell Cobb, Class of 1834, who was elected in 1851. During the succeeding century of the University's history, twenty-eight men have filled that high office and of that number fourteen have been University of Georgia alumni.

Eugene Talmadge was elected to another four-year term in Nov. 1946 but died in December 1946, one month later.

The combined length of service of these fourteen governors was forty-three years, or almost half a century.

Thus, from the days preceding the War Between the States through a portion of the Reconstruction period, through the period of rehabilitation and on up to the present time, the University of Georgia has in large measure furnished from its alumni the guiding hands in the marvelous development of the state.
Since the opening of the University of Georgia in 1801, approximately 50,000 students have entered the institution. Of that number 18528 have graduated with the several degrees of their choice. This shows an average of 37 per cent of the total enrollment who finished their work and received their degrees.

A high official of the General Education Board several years since told the writer that in state-supported institutions in the United States the average should be about forty per cent and in private institutions a little higher.

The large influx of students since the end of World War II under the provisions of the G-I bill to extend the privileges of a college education, the percentage of those graduating has naturally declined somewhat. Prior to that time the average at the University was about 39 per cent. Thus it appears that the average at the University of Georgia has been practically that of all the state-supported colleges throughout the country.

Distributed according to the degrees, the table shows the following:

The conferring of honorary degrees has been a custom in the University of Georgia since the year of its first graduating class in 1806. Up to 1870 the honorary degrees of Doctor of Laws, Doctor of Divinity and Master of Arts were conferred. For the past seventy-five years other degrees have been added, to-wit: Doctor of Science, Doctor of Letters, Doctor of Pedagogy, Doctor of Agriculture and Doctor of Commercial Science.

For a time there were more Master of Arts degrees conferred on an honorary basis than any other degree. At the very first Commencement five such degrees were awarded to Eugene H. Cumming, Elijah Clarke, John Forsyth, Henry Meigs and William Prince. The rule then was that any graduate with a bachelor's degree could be awarded an honorary Master of Arts degree one year later, provided he had maintained good character, had shown evidence of continued study and had filed an application for the degree. Under this rule quite a number qualified. It was not until 1870 that a regular course of study was prescribed for the Master's degree and thereafter only twenty-six honorary degrees of Master of Arts have been conferred, the last one being conferred on a distinguished young woman, Miss Julia Flisch.

This degree, since that time, has been conferred only on the completion of a course of study and since 1910 this work has been a part of the Graduate School.

Looking back to the olden days there was from time to time a disposition on the part of the Board of Trustees to reduce the number of honorary degrees conferred, especially the Master of Arts degree.

The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws has always been considered the highest honorary degree to be conferred. During the entire history of the University, covering almost a century and a half, only sixty-nine such degrees have been conferred. As a rule they have been conferred upon men of the highest achievement. The first LL.D. degree was conferred on Joel Barlow, a man of high literary attainment and a relative of Abraham Baldwin.
founder of the University, in 1809. The last LL.D. degree was conferred on President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1938.

The degree of Doctor of Divinity has always been a favorite degree. Ministers of the Gospel, in spite of their high calling, are still human beings who are appreciative of honors conferred on them, and they are delighted to affix that D.D. sign after their names. Across the years seventy-five such degrees have been conferred by the University of Georgia, many of them occupying eminent positions in their respective churches throughout the entire country.

As a rule only two or three honorary degrees were conferred at each Commencement and in some years no such degrees were conferred. At times however the Trustees would let down the bar and confer as many as ten such degrees in one year. This always raised quite a discussion in the meeting of the Trustees, protesting voices being heard from those who always favored of honorary degrees. In a few instances, no doubt, personal friendship or political alliance appeared as deciding influences, but this did not prevail to any marked extent. As a rule nothing entered into the choices made that would lower the scholastic standard.

During the twentieth century more and more attention was paid to the merits of those who had rendered eminent service in the fields of science, letters, education and business.

When the state-supported colleges went under the management and supervision of the Board of Regents in 1933, the custom of awarding honorary degrees practically vanished. Since that date there has been only one such degree conferred in the name of the University of Georgia, the degree of Doctor of Laws conferred upon President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1938.

The complete list of honorary degrees conferred by the University of Georgia, 1804–1947, a period of one hundred and forty-three years, is here given, the total number being three hundred and eighteen.

CERTIFICATES OF MERIT

In 1837, the Alumni Society, desiring to honor some of its members for their loyalty and service to the University, decided to award a limited number of certificates, signed by the officers and board of managers of the Society and designated as "Certificates of Merit."

In the by-laws of the Society appears this section: "The Board of Managers shall have authority to make each year not exceeding two special merit awards to outstanding alumni of the University in recognition of special interest in or service rendered to the University."

Under this authority the Society has awarded in the last eight years thirteen certificates of merit. The first awards were made at the meeting of the Society on June 4, 1937, and the recipients were William D. Anderson, Class of 1891 and Phinizy Calhoun, Class of 1900. The other awards have been:

June 13, 1938—Hughes Spalding, Class of 1910, and Harald Hirsch, Class of 1901.

June 12, 1939—William H. Barrett, Class of 1885 and Marion Smith, Class of 1903.

June 11, 1945—Harrison Jones, Class of 1907, and George C. Woodruff, Class of .
No attempt will be made to give brief individual biographies of graduates since 1932. Names of graduates and their degrees, however, will be given.
