Poetry: "Hymn to Joy" by Fleming Treasury of Georgia
Milledgeville April 19th 1865

Received of S. Waitsfield Agt. of the State of Georgia two hundred and twenty thousand three hundred and eighty one and two dollars in Confederate Treasury notes, Subject to his own return of this receipt signed by him

J. D. Jones Treasurer

Telamon Cuyler Collection
University of Georgia
State of Georgia.

Personally appeared before me County of Baldwin William H. Scott, Justice of the Inferior Court, in said County Andrew T. Anderson, who being duly sworn according to law, deploys and says that about the 20th day of January last past, Capt. Isaac R. Foster, Quartermaster General of the State of Georgia, left Deponent at Wilmington N. C. to attend to the State of Georgia Cotton interests in that City, in connection with George Harris, agent. And to have the Cotton removed to some place more out of danger from the enemy. Two State of Georgia Trains (of the Western & Atlantic Rail Road) were sent out from Georgia for that purpose.

Deponent of said Harris commenced moving out the Cotton, which belonged to the State of Georgia, to Florence, S.C. on the said two Trains intending when the said Cotton should be thus all moved to that point, to re-load and move it still further to some still safer place if necessary. The intention being to get the Cotton away from Wilmington as soon as possible, as that City was declared in immediate danger. The trains were run on to Florence, so as to make as quick trips as possible.

On or about the 15th Day of February, whilst the said two Georgia Trains came at Florence loaded with Georgia State Cotton and before all the State of Georgia Cotton had been removed from Wilmington, And whilst these were at Charleston S. C. Several hundred Said of Cotton belonging to the State of Georgia waiting for these two trains to be sent for it by the Commandant of the Post at Florence, S. C., Lt. Col. Williams, being an officer of the Confederate Government, ordered the impressment of these two State of Georgia trains for the purpose of sending them to Charleston for Confederate Government use. Dependent then appealed to said Lt. Col. Williams for the release of said two trains, but without success. Learning that the impressment of the same had been made by order of Maj. W. M. McPherson, Chef Q. M. at Charleston, Dependent then telegraphed to Maj. W. M. McPherson, stating that these two trains had been sent by order of Governor Brown to Florence to supply stores and Cotton, belonging to the State of Georgia from Wilmington and Charleston and begged their release, but said Maj. W. M. McPherson refused to release them, saying it was for the benefit of the Government. The Confederate Authorities held these two trains under impressment for some two months, and finally released them and sent them back to Florence from Charleston about the 2nd day of March, which was done three days before the enemy attacked that place Florence. After the release of the trains (even at that late day) Dependent could have loaded and moved out of Florence in a portion of the State of Georgia Cotton before the attack was made on the place. but Adjutant learned that the Military Superintendent of the rail road would not allow the Georgia trains to stand on the Churard rail road track, so as to enable Adjutant to load the State of Georgia Cotton (which Cotton was piled near the Churard R. R. track) but ordered the trains to run down and stand on the North Eastern R. R. track, which was done distant about one mile from the place where the Georgia Cotton was piled.

When the evening came the raid on Florence, (about the 5th day of March) all the Cotton there was burned by order of the Confederate officers in Conner and Lo. The lot burned were Sixteen hundred and forty five Bales (1645) of the State of Georgia Cotton. Sixteen hundred and five of them were Sea Island Cotton and fourteen hundred and forty five Bales were Upland Cotton. After the Yankers were repelled from Florence, the State of Georgia trains were run out with safety to Manchester, S. C. Head the Cotton not been destroyed at Florence it could have been removed to Manchester also and been saved. Said Cotton would have been safe even if not removed from Florence, as the enemy never obtained possession of that place. So it was lost entirely by the action of the Confederate Authorities in having it burned—over.
Sovereign to & subscribed before me this 4th day of April 1865

State of Georgia
Personnas appeared before me,
County of Baldwin Reckhan, Esq, justice of the Superior Court in and for said State, & State, No. 2, W. J. Anderson, being sworn according to law appears and says that he deponent has just read over the affidavit of A. J. Anderson written on the three preceding pages of this paper, and that the statements contained therein in said affidavit are true and correct as therein stated. That deponent knows those statements to be true from his own knowledge as he, deponent, was the conductor of one of the two said State of Georgia trains employed to remove the said State of Georgia Cotton from Milburnton to Florence, and that deponent was with those two trains all the time whilst they were removing said cotton, when they were impressed by Lt. Col. Williams, when they were relieved by and was at Florence, when the Confederate Officer in Command of the fort at Florence had the said State of Georgia Cotton burned as stated by Mr. Anderson in his aforesaid affidavit, and deponent has the said cotton burned at Florence as stated. by the said Anderson in his said Affidavit. The Defendant further states that, "enemy did not get possession of Florence at all, being repelled by our forces. Neither did the enemy at any time in possession of the place where the Georgia State Cotton was piled. And that if the enemy had obtained possession of the cotton, they could have done nothing with the cotton but burn it as they had no means of transportation to the interior within their reach from the coast.

Subscribed before me this 8th day of April 1865.
